Here are new player animations in the new 3D engine for players 2.0 Read More This feature first appeared in FIFA 19 and will be familiar to the faces of football fans with a PS4 or XBOX One game in the series. In the new player 2.0 update, all new animations are powered by Player Motion Capture data from player 22. To ensure this new technology continues to be effective, the player tracking in the engine will be bolstered to ensure more accurate data is captured from the players. MLS players will notice a prominent boost to their Player 2.0 animations. This should offer more realistic looking team-mates and opponents. The new player animations in FIFA 22 look amazing and include a new dynamic switching animation and on-the-ball response for takers, while players hit the ground will react realistically. The ToeOff animation also receives a new ease of use animation and feeling of strength, with better overall performance. This new animation improves cutbacks, slide tackles and headbutts, and adds impact physics to injuries. The animation team has revisited real-world player data collected from dozens of club players.
