Plantation, Mississippi Plantation, formerly known as Lower Clio, is an unincorporated community located in Claiborne County, Mississippi, United States, near the Mississippi-Alabama border. It was a first class stop on the Mobile and Ohio Railroad and a company town on a large cotton plantation. The town now has a local post office, community school, Baptist church, and cemetery. History Plantation was incorporated by the state legislature on June 16, 1856, with one of the two representative commissioners being John A. Pleasant, a former state senator. Plantation became the county seat for Claiborne County when it was established on December 15, 1859, and at the time of its incorporation it had a population of 300, 5% of which were black slaves. The community was named after nearby Plantation Creek, which is presumed to be a misspelling of plantation. The Mobile and Ohio Railroad line was constructed through the area in the late
