You control the movement of a couple of swimming creatures. They are separated by a freestyle gap, which lets you explore different areas of the surrounding world using the fixed camera mode. This mode works similarly to the way it does in Portal. The main goal is to swim to and across gaps, avoiding the blocks. There are multiple stages in this game, each with a couple of levels. You can progress through the game by crossing small or big gaps. Each gap has different attributes, like height or stability. In each level, you can collect stars or you can just avoid the blocks. The stars are used to unlock new swimming modes, like the Free mode. The game has a scoring system, so you can compare your scores with other players and competitors. The levels can be replayed as well. The game features some really interesting mechanics. For example, the jumping, wall hopping, and swimming mechanics have some great movement and physics, letting the player to easily create neat and clever paths through the levels. The music is both calming and calm, perfect to match the relaxed gameplay. The graphics are sharp and have very nice colors, and the game has a very artistic style. Neuron-specific transgenic expression of Nogo-A in the adult mouse: effects on CNS myelination, axonal and dendritic growth, and behavioral performance. To test the hypothesis that Nogo-A is a functional inhibitor of neurite growth and myelination, we generated transgenic mice overexpressing Nogo-A in subsets of neurons. This was achieved by targeted expression of Nogo-A to either neurons or oligodendrocytes. Both types of transgenic mice showed increased myelination of the central nervous system with a marked increase of myelin in the spinal cord. Overexpression of Nogo-

Algorithm: Anagrams

I have tried the following, which doesn't seem to work. `$.post({ url: 'url', type: 'POST', data: { algorithm: 'anagrams', text: some_text } });` `$.post({ url: 'url', type: 'POST', data: { algorithm: 'anagrams', text: some_text, } });`; The answer is a local file. I'm using jQuery to fill in some html then save, so I can't use `serialize()`; The first line results in an error. The second crashes the app and doesn't execute any calls after that.

Should be RED, not GREEN

$.post({ url: 'url', data: 'HERE', type: 'POST', success: function(){ $('body').append('

Even their own example uses.serialize(); and $.post Is there an easy way to use an alternative method to quickly post something to my /public/algorithm/anagrams/ directory?

Project Druid 2D - Labyrinth Explorer is a game of simple gameplay. You and the monsters enter a maze and try to reach the exit. The basic rule here is to be the last one standing. Every monster has its own "bouncer" which is represented by a small light ball. If a ball loses contact with you it will bounce off your character and vanish. The goal is to finish the maze as fast as possible. The maze will be filled with monsters. You don't do much here you just walk and the monsters try to eat you (in some levels you can hide your light in a small chest you can't walk into) and you try to walk as fast as possible before they eat you. Keys for each level of the maze will be given. Each key will open a small door in the maze. You can use these doors to get back to the start. Easy enough right? Would you like to clear the project of all the bugs and mistakes in the game? If so then you are at the right place. Strategies to beat the game First off. Focus on finding the keys which open up the maze as soon as possible. If you are quick you can beat most of the levels. Second. Try to use the golden balls which will bounce off any monster in the maze. They are easily found by looking at a monster and looking around for a red ball. Third. Make sure to hide your light while walking around and at times when you are close to monsters. Some more notes for the game If you are one of those who is slow and can't make it through the maze then don't worry you can play and beat the game. You can hide your light in the labyrinth. The game will tell you when you hit a door. If you hit a door that is marked with a key then you can open it. This will let you save your progress and use it to beat the game. Make sure to equip yourself with some potions and the luck cards. You will need them. Drop rate/monsterfall If you kill a monster with a key you will get a key from it. The rate at which you will get keys from killing monsters is random depending on the difficulty of the level. Key cards Sometimes you will find special key cards in the labyrinth. You will only be able to use these cards on the maze where you found them. To get a card you need to click on the
